25 January 1964

Dear Pat:

STAT In late 1962, we had an exchange of correspondence concerning [redacted] who was interested in obtaining a position in the Agency. He was a former war-time aide of mine and also had worked for the Agency in the Far East.

STAT By your letter of 7 December 1962, you reported that you had no position which would be appropriate for [redacted].

STAT He called on me again today to discuss his possible utility to the Agency [redacted] [redacted] He has had some contact on the subject with Mr. Tracy Barnes who could inform you of the matter if you wish to get into it.

I am writing this note to call your attention to the possibility of using a volunteer who appears advantageously placed to be of service.

Sincerely,

MAXWELL D. TAYLOR
Chairman
Joint Chiefs of Staff

Lieutenant General Marshall S. Carter
Deputy Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington 25, D. C.

Remarks:

Per our telecon I am sending you the attached.
 The General has since indicated that he definitely wants to reply to Taylor. Would appreciate getting from you or Tracy either a draft reply or the guts of something I can draft.
